

Some Things to do Giving a Tour of Pike Place Market

First, the sign. Take a picture for folks or let them avail themselves of a photo
w/ the iconic Public Market sign (w/ clock) on Pike.

Notice that you say iconic
as if you were still in Chicago and it had a “k” on the end.

Remind them it is Pike Place Market
not Pike’s Market
or
Pike Street Market.

Pike Place.

Put a quarter in Rachel.

Watch the fish throwers. If an off day
get your tour near the plastic fish sometimes springs
to life.

Then Tenzing Momo. The name of this Tibetan Buddhist Herbal apothecary means illustrious yak dumpling roughly translated.

Tell ‘em Jeff Gould’s corny hot dog joke he told
the Dalai Lama

sniff the aromatherapy testers
browse the books, buy the Witches’ Almanac (in season)

buy some bee propolis

gum, put two in yr
mouth, tell 'em

that tag line on the radio show underwriting credit:

At Tenzing Momo, we overcharge every third customer and pass the savings on to you.

Watch the changing of the buskers.

Wonder who Allen and Miriam are when you step over their tile. Thank Victor Steinbrueck.

Go to the park they named for him or the gallery with his last name. See some Susan Point. Think about frogs.

Stop & hear Jon Strongbow's spiel.
Psychedelic animals &
aboriginals in Seattle's
urban landscape.

Maybe see his creature called the Dicky Bird. Discourage Melissa's tattoo idea. Approve of Helga's denim Pike Place apron purchase & Emmanuel's Mt. St. Helens ash Raven sculpture.

See the Olympics
beyond wake of Bremerton Ferry or July 5 Tahoma over the stadium to be named after a new corporation
to be named
later.

Hear Emmanuel finish
the Jesus Jubilee song

w/ the gospel singers
rich baritone, front of first Starbucks, perfect pitch. Hear one singer
(the one with gloves to protect his clapping hands) say

He do it gooooooood!

Three Girls soup or reuben.
Jack's Crab Spot halibut & chips.
Three Girls cheese Danish or Le Panier almond croissant.
Ten dollar bouquets.
Morrisonite necklaces.
Jalapeño jelly. D.T.
Seattle skyline photo
night lights reflect on Elliott Bay trails. Upended bumbershoot sculpture.
Produce is not jewelry.
